

Program Management Professional (PgMP®)

Program managers can obtain an internationally recognised credential that certifies their advanced knowledge, experience and skills. The Project Management Institute (PMI®) offers a Program Management Professional (PgMP®) certification credential.

The PgMP® credential recognizes those practitioners who are responsible for the coordinated management of multiple, related projects that advance organizational objectives and strategic goals.

ProjectPro, which has trained hundreds of candidates to pass the PMI® credential exams, offers 2-day workshops to prepare candidates for the PgMP™ exam. It is also invaluable for those just interested in knowing more about program management.

Who should attend?

- * candidates wishing to prepare and apply for the PgMP™ exam
- * for executives, project sponsors, project directors, program managers, portfolio managers, Project Management Office (PMO) heads, quantity surveyors wishing to know more about the processes and benefits of the program management approach in supporting organisational strategy
- * holders of the Project Management Professional (PMP®) credential who can earn 16 Professional Development Units (PDU) for re-certification purposes.

Accredited Project Management Training

Building on the rigorous process it takes to achieve other certifications in PMI's family of credentials, the PgMP® requires two online evaluations:

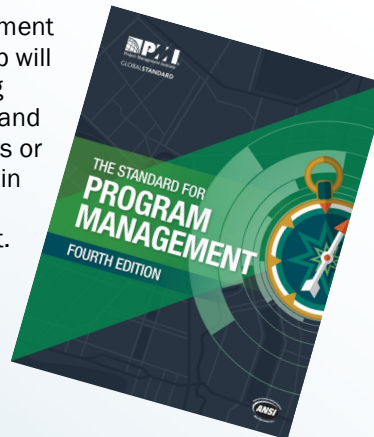

1. An application review by a panel of program managers
2. A multiple-choice examination

Completing the evaluations allows program managers to assess their knowledge and skills against global industry standards.

“It was a very good opportunity to test myself to find where my skills are located according to program management standards and to see where I need to develop.” said Kwang Gu Baek, PMP, PgMP, program manager for Eaton Korea, an automotive company in Pyungtek-Si, Republic of Korea.

Because the evaluations are progressed in an online environment, panels of program managers from across the world are able to assess the candidate's professional experience in the first evaluation.

The Program Management Professional workshop will be a valuable learning experience for senior and advanced practitioners or executives interested in project, program and portfolio management.
