

Program Management Professional (PgMP®)

Program managers can now obtain an internationally recognised credential that certifies their knowledge, experience and skills. The Project Management Institute (PMI®) has launched their Program Management Professional (PgMP®) certification.

The PgMP® credential recognizes those practitioners who are responsible for the coordinated management of multiple, related projects that advance organizational objectives and strategic goals.

ProjectPro, which has trained hundreds of candidates to pass the PMI® credential exams, offers 2-day workshops to prepare candidates for the PgMP® exam. It is also invaluable for those just interested in knowing more about program management.

Who should attend?

- * candidates wishing to prepare and apply for the PgMP® exam
- * for executives, project sponsors, project directors, program managers, portfolio managers, Project Management Office (PMO) heads, quantity surveyors wishing to know more about the processes and benefits of the program management approach in supporting organisational strategy
- * holders of the Project Management Professional (PMP®) credential who can earn 15 Professional Development Units (PDU) for re-certification purposes.

Accredited Project Management Training

Building on the rigorous process it takes to achieve other certifications in PMI's family of credentials, the PgMP® uses three online evaluations:

1. An application review by a panel of program managers
2. A multiple-choice examination
3. A Multi-Rater Assessment (MRA) in which a team of raters, which the candidate selects, review the candidate's abilities to perform tasks that are relevant to program management.

Completing the three evaluations not only allows program managers to assess their knowledge and skills against global industry standards but also provides them with feedback through the MRA process that they can use for professional development.

"It was a very good opportunity to test myself to find where my skills are located according to program management standards and to see where I need to develop." said Kwang Gu Baik, PMP, PgMP, program manager for Eaton Korea, an automotive company in Pyungtek-Si, Republic of Korea.

Because the evaluations are progressed in an online environment, panels of program managers from across the world are able to assess the candidate's professional experience in the first evaluation. Candidates also can select MRA raters from anywhere in the world to participate in the third evaluation.

The Program Management Professional workshop will be a valuable learning experience for senior and advanced practitioners or executives interested in project, program and portfolio management.
